On behalf of King Abdullah, Makkah Governor Prince Khalid Al-Faisal washed the Holy Ka'abah on July 23. In accordance with tradition, he cleansed the floor and walls of the Ka'abah with a mixture of Zamzam water and rosewater using white pieces of cloth. Then, he performed the ritual circling of the structure. Saudi government officials, as well as a number of Muslim diplomats, took part in the event. The Ka'abah is washed twice a year, once before the holy month of Ramadan and once during the Hajj pilgrimage.
